COUNCIL REGULATION (EC) No 2211/2003

of 15 December 2003

amending Regulation (EC) No 2501/2001 applying a scheme of generalised tariff preferences for the period from 1 January 2002 to 31 December 2004 and extending it to 31 December 2005

THE COUNCIL OF EUROPEAN UNION,

Having regard to the Treaty establishing the European Community, and in particular Article 133 thereof,

Having regard to the Commission proposal,

Having regard to the opinion of the European Parliament <sup>(1)</sup>,

Having regard to the opinion of the European Economic and Social Committee <sup>(2)</sup>,

Whereas:

- (1) Since 1971 the Community has granted trade preferences to developing countries under its generalised tariff preference scheme.
- (2) The Community's common commercial policy must be consistent with and consolidate the objectives of development policy, in particular the eradication of poverty and the promotion of sustainable development in the developing countries.
- (3) The multilateral trade negotiations launched at the fourth ministerial conference of the World Trade Organisation in Doha in November 2001 are not yet over. It is therefore premature to draw up guidelines for applying the scheme from 2005 to 2014, which is a valid reason for renewing the current scheme for one year in accordance with the guidelines in the Commission communication to the Council of 1 June 1994. The arrangements for drugs have to be evaluated. In addition, such renewal will allow candidate States, for which accession is foreseen in 2004, to be fully involved in the elaboration of a new preferential tariff scheme.

- (4) Implementation of Regulation (EC) No 2501/2001 <sup>(3)</sup> showed the need to amend some of its provisions.

- (5) In April 2003 the Council and the Commission committed themselves to examining any appropriate amendment to the annual mechanism for excluding beneficiary countries/sectors on the grounds of their development (graduation), bearing in mind the need to support the development of sustainable and competitive production including, inter alia, the possible adjustment of the graduation system for crops other than drugs. Pending other possible amendments in the future generalised system of preferences (GSP), Article 12 of Regulation (EC) No 2501/2001 should be amended now to avoid any adverse impact on beneficiary countries whose low volume of GSP-covered trade makes them vulnerable to any change in tariff preferences.

- (6) In order to take into account the individual characteristics of the developing countries benefiting from the GSP, the special incentive arrangements for the protection of labour rights need to be strengthened in order to give more encouragement to the gradual adoption of the standards set out in the International Labour Organisation (ILO) declaration.

- (7) Regulation (EC) No 2501/2001 should therefore be amended accordingly,

HAS ADOPTED THIS REGULATION:

- (b) the national legislation of which incorporates the substance of the standards referred to in paragraph (a), and which is engaged in a clear and significant way in applying them, including all appropriate means envisaged in the relevant ILO conventions, taking the utmost account of the assessment of the situation made by the ILO.

In the case provided for in (b), the arrangements may be accorded for a limited period and their renewal shall be subject to the beneficiary country giving proof of progress in this area. The appraisal of such progress shall be carried out according to the memorandum of understanding to be agreed upon by the authorities of the beneficiary country.'
